TIME TO BE ALARMED

When the great Boston & Maine Railroad through a special committee announces as a matter of fact that 1000 miles of railroad (practically all of this in New Hampshire) is to be abandoned, it is time for New England to wake up. Steam railroads mean business life to communities 365 days in the year. It is time for the manufacturer and merchant to give careful thought as to what this means. You can't take patronage away from railroads and still have them when you want them. "Ship by train," should be a more popular slogan in the future. Electric railroads have been superceded by motor busses. What next?

STRIKING MINERS RETURN TO WORK

State Police and Deputy Sheriffs on Hand to Prevent Trouble at Scranton, Penn.

(By Associated Press)

Scranton, Penn., Dec. 29—About one-half of the 1300 miners of the Underwood Colliery of the Penn. Coal Co., resumed work today. State police and sheriffs deputies were on hand to protect the men but they had nothing to do. The Underwood mine is one of the ten collaries of the Pennsylvania Coal Co., involved in the strike of the 11,000 anthracite workers who quit November 25 because of grievances they had were not adjusted. The strikt was not authorized by the district organization of the United Mine Workers and the charters of ten local unions involved were revoked when the men refused to return to work. The action of the Underwood local in voting to resume work means that the international union will be asked to reinstate its charter. President Cappellini of District No. 1 said today. The officer also said that he would try to get immediate action on the grievances of the Underwood employes before the conciliation board.

Boston, with a lowest temperature of 7 above zero, was almost the warmest place in New England yesterday, with Lewiston, Me., reporting 3 below; Woodsville, N. H., 18 below and the hill districts of Vermont 20 degrees below.

FINE SKATING

There is fine skating on the South Pond and during the day many take advantage of it, but in the evening, owing to the lack of light the skaters cannot skate. It has been suggested to the Herald that with continued cold weather and no snow there ought to be a fine opportunity for a New Year's eve skating party. If a fire could be built on the shore of the pond and with hundreds of skaters enjoying the sport it might be well worth while.

SAYS TARIFF IS INADEQUATE

(By Associated Press)

New Bedford, Mass., Dec. 29.—With the statement that the cotton mills of this city are dependent on the tariff, to maintain their prosperity as affecting both the investors and the employes, Morgan Butler, treasurer of the Butler Mills and president of the National Cotton Manufacturers Association said the tariff bill of 1922 had proved inadequate for their protection. It was added that only recent reduction in the cost of production or an increase in the tariff on fine cotton goods would adequately protect American standards and that the community must support every endeavor to make the tariff adequate to protect our textile business. The statement by Mr. Butler who is the son of U. S. Senator William M. Butler was made in a summary of the past year in the textile industry here and an estimate of the prospects for 1925. "Since the World War the textile industry of the world has been subject to several depressions," Mr. Butler said. "It is just beginning to emerge from the most severe an dlongest depression in modern times."

Yes, Winthrops cost a bit more than ordinary asphalt shingles, but they are easily worth twice the small difference. Let us show you why.

MOVES PRESAGE END OF MERCHANT MARINE; CASE IS UP TO PEOPLE

(By National News Service)

Washington, Dec. 29.—The American Merchant Marine, considered as a government agency, maintained adequately for purposes of trade and national defense, is seriously threatened.

This is the opinion of well-informed individuals with no axe to grind, either on the side of men who have "milked" the organization freely from within or who for personal reasons want it administered by private concerns.

The faction in the Shipping Board which has been fighting might and main to keep the ships off the junk pile and out of foreign hands has admittedly lost ground since the people voted Nov. 4 against investigations and weakened the hands of the committee on Capitol Hill. The board majority and the committee were standing shoulder to shoulder, and the private and foreign interests were fighting from the outside.

The fight to keep the ships afloat and touching at the ports of the world in regular, up-to-date service is not abandoned, however. President Coolidge's decision to support President Palmer in one-man control has proven a decided disappointment to the committee and board, but these agencies still have cards to play. They believe few congressmen will vote to make the operation of the merchant fleet a New York affair, but practically all will insist on a continuation of regional representation of the entire country. A leader said:

"The rats are gnawing the malt; private and foreign interests have driven a wedge into the government organization. If the people want a merchant marine, they should so advise their congressmen; if they want to scrap what we have and put up the money for a new one a few years hence, they have that prospect."

NEW COURSE IN PRINTING ARTS

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 29—Inauguration of a new correspondence course in the printing arts, under direction of a newly organized bureau of education of the International Typographical Union will take place Jan. 1, according to an announcement by James M. Lynch, president of the union.

The instruction will cover a wider field than was covered by the course until recently conducted from the union's educational quarters in New York city. The new bureau occupies quarters in the international offices here. Energy and resources of the union will be devoted to extending work of the educational bureau as rapidly as is practical, Mr. Lynch said.

"The newly installed executive council looks upon apprentice training as of vital importance," said Mr. Lynch. "The I. T. U. protective and beneficial institutions, such as the Union Printers Home at Colorado Springs, Colo., mortuary benefit and old age pension, have accomplished much in strengthening the organization, but future welfare of the union requires elevation of craftsmanship and sound education of succeeding generations of printers.

"Employers do not object to paying good wages to good printers, but they will complain against good wages for incompetent men. The same applies in any other trade. It is our ambition to light the way for other trades in this problem of education."

Under bylaws of the Typographical Union passage of the course in printing by apprentices is compulsory. They are required to begin their educational work in the third year of their six-year apprenticeship and the work must be completed before they are admitted to membership. The new bureau will provide adequate methods for checking up the progress of each apprentice in his studies and for determining if he has profited by his studies.

In addition to the merely technical operations of the printing craft, the course will carry instruction in English, punctuation, art in its relation to printing and in advertising composition. The policy of permitting the student to elect subjects, not included in the fundamental course, will be pursued.

THE HERALD'S BOOK REVIEW

Pollyana Of The Orange Blossoms, by Harriet Lummis Smith.

Though the reading public lament the death of Eleanor Porter, creator of Pollyana, the glad girl, the publishers deemed it advisable to continue the series if possible, realizing that the public eagerly awaited the continuation of Pollyana and the glad game. In this "labor of love" Harriet Lummis Smith, herself a well-known author, has taken up the task of continuing the series started by Eleanor H. Porter, and in her first effort has turned out a glad book that will be as eagerly read and as widely circulated as were Pollyana and Pollyana Grows Up. In Pollyana Of the Orange Blossoms, the glad girl appears again, spreading good cheer with her customary sweetness and she's just as joyous-hearted as ever. She is even more entrancing as Jimmy's bride, the glad sort of a bride you would expect her to be. L. C. Page and Co., Boston. Cloth. 12 mo. $2.00.

The Man From Smiling Pass, by Eliot Harlow Robinson. This is the author's third Cumberland novel, tingling, as did its predecessors, Miles and Smiling Pass, with the appealing, vivid life of the Cumberland mountaineer, a people the author knows well and depicts with keen sympathy and rare fidelity. The Man From Smiling Pass relates vividly the tale of a strong man of humble mountain origin, who, after achieving education and worldly success, returns to his people to establish law and order. The fabric of an intensely dramatic story is woven around manner in which Blount's patriotic ideals and respect for law clash with the designs of scheming politicians and lawless mountaineers. Then, of course, there is romance, the mountain girl playing a conspicuous part in the virile, stirring novel of blended romance and politics. L. C. Page and Co., Boston. Cloth. 12 mo. $2.00.

The Purple Mist, by G. E. Locke. A detective domance that is vastly different from the ordinary type of mystery story. It will delight the jaded reader who has tired of the mystery story with its journalistic style and steorytype plot. The Purple Mist is a story of a murder, sensational and puzzling enough to challenge the most hardened student of detective technique. A purple mist rises at twilight and floats over the lonely moors about Craghaven Castle, a mist that baffles the reader as to its purpose. In this intensely interesting story the characters strangely disappear when they cross the path of the Phantom Coach which crosses the moor at midnight—and they disappear forever. These are only a few of the perplexing problems that hold the absorbed reader until the last page. The plot is most ingenious and exceedingly baffling, unraveling itself in an unique and stirring manner. L. C. Page and Company, Boston, Cloth, 12 mo. $1.00.

RAILROAD NOTES

Asks State to Fight Cut

An order directing the attorney general to intervene on behalf of the cities and towns affected by the abandonment of various lines of the Boston & Maine railroad was filed with the clerk of the Massachusetts Senate by Senator-elect Harry P. Gifford of Salem.

The order directs the attorney general "to take such action as he may deem appropriate to safeguard the public interest in general and the interests of the cities and towns injuriously affected in relation to the proposed abandonment by the Boston and Maine railroad of that part of its system known as the Wakefield-Newburyport branch and of other portions of its system by representing the interests of such cities and towns of the state at the hearing which is to be given on the subject by the Interstate Commerce Commission and the State Public Utilities Department."

Against Lorings B. & M. Plan

N. L. Amster of Boston, who won the fight some years ago against the old Rock Island directors, forcing them to pay back to the treasury of the company $7,500,000 which he claimed had been wrongfully diverted, and who accomplished the feat of reorganizing that property without foreclosure, has jumped into the Boston and Maine affray, taking up the cudgels in behalf of security holders against the Loring plan of financial readjustment. Amster has for many years taken a deep interest in New England railroads, assisted in securing for the New England roads loans from the government and increased rate divisions from the trunk lines. He is a substantial stockholder in Boston and Maine and is a member of the executive committee of the Rock Island.

In a communication to Boston and Maine stockholders, he states that he is forming a committee "made up of actual owners of the company's securities," and asks their co-operation. He declares that the aim is "to defend and conserve the equity of the security holders and expose all attempts and efforts to deprive stockholders of their valuable equities."

He points out that the government valuation of the Boston and Maine is about $282,000,000, after deducting depreciation of $50,000,000; that the excess of property value over total capitalization is about $68,000,000 and that equity for the 395,000 shares of common stock is about $250 per share. He calls attention to the fact that Boston and Maine is earning a surplus over all charges this year and indications are that in 1925 it will earn full interest charges, full dividends on all classes of preferred stock and at least $6 per share on the common stock.

He characterizes the Loring plan as "impracticable and unnecessary" and one which has precipitated a "veritable panic among the already milked and looted stockholders." He declares that Mr. Loring published his refinancing plan without either action by or approval of the directors; that Mr. Loring knew, before he published the plan, that banking interests were ready to buy enough of the Boston & Maine bonds, which the company has the right to issue under its present mortgage, to take care of all the 1925 maturities; and that the inference in Mr. Loring's plan that the Boston & Maine has no means of financing under the present mortgage there is provision for the refunding of all Boston & Maine maturities and $40,000,000 for extensions and improvements besides.

Fools 'Em

James P. Overstreet told members of the exclusive River Crest Country Club, Fort Worth, Tex., that he was the son of a Chicago millionaire. As such he was dined and feted. Later he was arrested as being one of the four unmasked bandits who robbed the Shawnee (Okla.) Federal National Bank of $18,000 a week before.

ELECTRIC ROAD IS TIED UP

Woonsocket, R. I., Dec. 27.—About 40 miles of the United Electric Railway between Providence and Woonsocket and in Woonsocket were put out of operation when blasting operations on the new Louisquisit Pike, under construction between the two cities, destroyed the feed wires supplying the power to the lines. Officials of the company could not say when the service will be restored.

CHARGE MAN STOLE FROM AUTOMOBILES

New York City, Dec. 19—Charles Mitchell, 30, a West Indian, suspected of thefts aggregating $500 from the automobiles of wealthy persons in the Fifth avenue shopping district, among them a "Miss Rockefeller," before Christmas, arrested here after a short chase.

Ruby White, the 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl White of Canaan, learned at school that her teeth needed attention, and so she went alone to the office of Dr. G. A. Danforth, who made four extractions. Then she went home and broke the news to her somewhat surprised parents.

Son of Gods Loses

He lost. Prince Suml, fourth son of the Emperor Yoshishito of Japan, dashed in third and panting in the annual autumn track and field meet at the Peers School in Tokio. The eight-year-old descendant of the gods causes his attendants great alarm by playing so much at strenuous foreign sports.

Skiing and snow-shoeing are minus quantities in the problem of winter sports. Those who received snow-shoes, skiis and toboggans from Santa Claus are rather impatient with the weather man. They think he is very inconsiderate for not sending snow instead of this awfully cold weather.

Air Travel

With the news of each air disaster the average person is tempted to decry the real value of aeronautical means of travel as being entirely too unsafe. The average person of course judges by the number of accidents he hears of and not by the number of persons carried safely in comparison with those killed and injured. As a general rule more accidents have occurred to experimental planes than to regular commercial planes on schedule runs.

The crash of the Paris-London air express and the death of its passengers within the last few days is one of those sad occurrences which mar the building up of any great system or movement. As a coral island is built up of millions of tiny skeletons of living organisms, so any great method of travel has been attended by shocking fatalities in the early stages of its inception.

Too often we forget this fact. When automobiles first came into use there were the same accidents, due to faulty design and construction, as there are now in the realm of the air. Now we can trave very few serious accidents to either faulty design or construction in the case of automobiles. Most auto accidents are due to carelessness or just Providence. The point is that in spite of the increase of auto accidents it is stated that the ratio of accidents decreases because of the enormous increase in the number of autos in use.

So it will be in the air. Accidents there must be. Someone must pay the price of progres. Gradually air travel will be developed and extended until it is at least as safe as automobile travel, and, we earnestly trust, much, much safer. The human element of a pilot's carelessness must always be reckoned with as must that of an automobile driver be reckoned with. The real problem is to eliminate that recklessness by a careful selection of airplane pilots. Time alone can remedy structural and mechanical weaknesses in our means of air travel.

Giant Electric System

The establishment of what is claimed to be the greatest chain of electric stations in the world that will furnish power to hundreds of miles of industrial centers as well as to a vast area for domestic use is of wide interest, especially as the area proposed to be supplied covers several states.

The project originates in and will be developed by Pennsylvania. The survey has already been made and only waits to be presented to tre Legislature. The survey is exhaustive, having reasoned to a practical conclusion every problem presented with which dvelopers would have to cope.

The plan is to establish these giant electric stations in the soft coal districts, the source of the coal of high volitile character but mostly unsatisfactory for other purposes, which will first be treated to exact all valuable by-products. It is estimated that the money realized by this method alone would go a considerable way toward the cost of the installation.

Huge power lines will spread out in a network across the country in every direction, reaching as far as New York city, with such an enormous flow of power that all industries, railroads and street car lines may draw upon them without reserve. All these giant stations will be connected in one circuit to insure unbroken supply.

It is estimated that the cost will be reduced so materially that the humblest home will find it an economy to use electricity for all domestic purposes. The magnitude of the project makes the probable power to be derived from the fall of water over Niagara appear insignificant.

State ownership is not to be recommended, the survey made by the state being thought sufficient to awaken private interests to the value of its findings and recommendations sufficiently to insure prompt and extensive development immediately.

Tractors for Russia

On Dec. 24 there will be 600 American tractors shipped to Odesa on an American freighter. Other shipments toward the end of the month will bring the total up to 2,083 tractors, with plows and sparep arts, worth $1,500,000.

There is a substantial Christmas present for Russia. The amount of money those tractors represent may be disregarded. So may the actual number of the tractors. But the fact that modern farm machinery is being sent to Russia by the shipload is of first clas importance.

There wil be further shipments until they run into the tens and hundreds of thousands. That is inevitable, with the vast agricultural area in Rusia crying for cultivation and the vast power of America to produce agricultural machinery.

So begins the regenration of Russia. First it will be industrial. Finally it will become political and spiritual. Our tractors will plow out Bolshevism.

Experiments carried on for years have established the fact that sugar beets of unsurpassed quality can be produced in Manitoba, the soil of the Red River Valley being particularly adapted to the production of beets. Two large American companies recently have been investigating the possibility of securing sufficient acreage of beets to warrant the erection of a beet sugar factory. This would add a new industry to the far north.

EDUCATION IN BUSINESS

Education is the root of progress. The most casual study of world history finds nations advancing in literature, political life and trade in proportion to their search for truth. It was the insatiate hunger for the realities of life that gave Greece her Plato, and it was Platonic appreciation of the bodies of men that made ancient Greece a country of health and physical power.

New England from the earliest days has given her attention to education. The names of some of the preparatory schools and colleges of this section are known in the far countries where our industrial products have rarely reached. We may rejoice in this cultural asset and in the vision of those early leaders who directed us so well.

But in the widening scope of learning, some wise man has said, the student would oft forget to study himself. Many of us in New England have forgotten in our interest in world and national problems to get at the facts about New England. We have failed to realize the essential truth that appreciation of our assets, and realization of our dangers, mean greater courage and wider foresight—in business, in politics, in living.

We believe that the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs have struck a vital note in the association of men. They have laid down a principle that to work best together you must know each other better. Calling a man "Jim" instead of Mr. Brown makes it easier to do business with "Jim." When Auburn and Lynn, and Fall River and Torrington know more about each other we will approach that much nearer the unity of action and thought that we as a section need.

This educative process is an active process. Chambers of commerce and clubs are doing a great deal to lay the facts of New England before herself. But there remains much to be done, much that can only be done by the individual.

Take down the dusty encyclopedia this evening and read over the facts about these six states of ours. Give a thought these holidays to the early struggles of our forefather pioneers. Think in terms beyond the confines of your own city and just so far as you think will you grow in love of your New England and in confidence in her future.

That the new launching arrangement carried out on the sub V-2 at the navy yard Saturday was the best in the history of the yard.

That Mrs. Ferrol Lynch of Beloit, Wis., is suing for divorce. Among other things she complains that her husband ripped the buttons off his shirts just to make her sew them on again.

ICE ALL THIS WAY

A Portsmouth man, now working in New York City, who paid a visit with his family of this city at Christmas time, reports that in his trip over the road in his automobile from New York, the traveling was very good, encountering no signs of fog on the road until he reached Breakfast Hill. Then he had his troubles, his machine skidding across the road on the glassy coating of ice frequently. It took him quite a while to come from Breakfast Hill to Portsmouth, consuming more time on the average in this short run than at any other time on the long run from New York.

HORNSBY HAD HIGH AVERAGE

Rogers Hornsby, the sterling slugger of the St. Louis Cardinals, copped the National League batting honors for 1924 with the remarkably high average of 423, the highest mark made since Willie Keeler hit 432 in 1897. Hornsby sets a new mark, this being his fifth consecutive year as batting leader, bettering the previous mark of Honus Wagner, who led the league for four consecutive seasons.

MAL HALLETTS ORCH. BACK TOMORROW NITE

The following facts are given out by the local management for the benefit of the hundreds of Portsmouth's sons and daughters who are home for the holidays:

Mal Hallet, in person, and his nationally famous Broadway, N. Y., Orchestra, are playing a return concert and dance engagement at Freeman's Hall tomorrow night.

Mal Hallett's Orchestra is without any exaggeration, the greatest musical attraction which has ever appeared in the N. E. states.

Mal Hallett's orchestra features more novelties and comedy numbers than any other orchestra in N. E.

Mal Hallett's is the only legitimate New York orchestra in N. E. Not an imitation of N. Y. tempo, but genuine N. Y. tempo by a genuine N. Y. Orchestra.

Mal Hallett's Orchestra broke all attendance records at the Crescent Gardens, Revere Beach, and the State Ballroom, Boston. (They were actually forced to turn hundreds of dancers away.)

Mal Hallett's Orchestra, as the feature vaudeville attraction, played to S. R. O. (standing room only) at Keith's Theatre, Boston Theatre and the State Theatre, Boston, and at the Poli Theatre at Worcester, on Sundays during the past month.

Mal Hallett's Orchestra is breaking all records by drawing bigger crowds than any other orchestra in every city where they play.

The popularity of this team has forced the management to limit the crowd to 1000 so come early.

BITS OF SPORT OF LOCAL INTEREST

The high school squad is working out during the vacation for a hard season which will begin with the New Year. Portsmouth last year lost the laurels it had attained in the basketball world and will have a stiff battle to regain them this season. Manchester has one of the strongest squads in the state and the benefit of a coach who has been in the school several years and who has systematized all athletics in the Queen City. The sooner Portsmouth gets a system, a logical working basis on which to build, the sooner we will have successful teams. Portsmouth is seldom at a loss for material in any sport, but under existing conditions, the boys are not given the opportunity to learn and develop. Any school where the coaches are changing every year or every two years is bound to have indifferent athletics. It took Broderick ten years to get results with his system in Haverhill, Mass. It has taken "Blodger" Carroll of St. James high of Haverhill a number of years to get a winning system together. Passaic high school of Passaic, N. J., hasn't lost a game in 149 games of basketball played in the last five years. E. A. Blood the mentor of these champions has relinquished his position of coach of the team but he has as his successor a man who is thoroughly versed in style of play and methods of training. System is what counts in the long run and the only sure way of getting results is by having a system installed. If we have got to change so often we should be able to have the new man trained under the same system as the one leaving. One who understands the work that has been done and one who can take up where the other stopped.

The high school alumni will play the basketball team on January 10 at Freeman's Hall. This game should prove most interesting as it will put the youngsters against some of the best basketball players that the school has produced, and will give the fans a line on the possibilities of a winning team. At present it is hard to say just who will make up the first string line-up of the high school team. Some of the boys show ability but the squad for the most part is made up of green material. Those who have played at all have picked up their knowledge of the game from their experience and have very little inside basketball. Among the forwards who look good are Smart, Gelman, Hartford, Smith, Sacco and Lizio. The latter two are quite small so that they will have to be exceedingly fast to land a berth. Voudy and Margeson are out for center. The former seems to have the call right now but Margeson is a willing worker and will develop fast. Neville and Chaney are the best possibilities for the guard positions. They are aggressive and fast but both of them lack experience. Cavaretta and McKenna are also making a strong bid for a place in the backfield. Time may produce many other good men out of the large squad which will report to Coach Rice when school opens again. The alumni will have a wealth of good material to pick a team from. Eastman, Cotton and Patch will be eligible for forwards, Badger and Neal may be used at center, O'Leary and Furbor may be seen in the backfield and Mara, former all-state back, may be played either forward or guard. With these men showing their wares, the high school team will be up against the toughest competition it will encounter all year and the fans will see some real basketball tossers in action.

When basket ball season rolls around, the followers of the hoop game can't help but think of "Heinie" Cragen, the man who really made the best players Portsmouth has ever had in the amateur game. Cragen coached the Wenehasa Club team a few years back which was the first team the high school had in recent years. This team was made up of high school boys who played under the club name and independent of the schools because at that time the high school didn't recognize basketball as a major sport. Butler, Davis, Craig, Shuttlesworth and many others learned the fundamentals as well as the intricacies of basketball from Cragen. These boys lost the championship of New England to New Bedford high school by one point and New Bedford wouldn't give the Cragen-coached team a return game or a series of games. All these men made good in college basketball and are now making good as coaches of basket ball as well as other sports. Following the great showing of the Wenehasa Club basketball died out again until a few years ago Cragen took hold of the game here again and produced such men as Eastman, Cotton, O'Leary, Furber, Kirkpatrick and many other lesser lights. Besides these men who learned basketball from Cragen himself the youngsters who made up the high school teams for a couple of years after Cragen left Portsmouth, were using Cragen's system. Most of these boys are now out of high school and the boys who are now making the teams were too young when Cragen was here, to profit by his talks and teaching of the high school squad. The facts are these: Cragen taught the teams which represented New Hampshire at the Tufts Tournament for three consecutive years, all the basketball they knew. The coaches who came after him had only to put the team on the floor and tell them to go to it. The boys know their "stuff" because they had received it from a man who knew the game from every angle. Basketball prospects for the future would look much brighter if Cragen was around to help in whipping the teams into shape.

Arlington, Mass., high school is taking on a man-sized job on New Years day. The Arlington basket shooters will take a crack at Passaic high school. This will be Passaics 50th straight win providing the New Jersey boys come through with the victory. Arlington hasn't got a hall big enough to hold the crowd that is anxious to see this wonder team in action. These youngsters are beginning to be as great a drawing card as the Celtics professional world champions.

The year 1924 has surely been a banner one in the realm of athletics. Many records have been broken and many new faces added to the Hall of Fame. Portsmouth is the "Home Town" of one record at least. Carvin Drew of Massachusetts Institute of Technology won the Intercollegiate hammer throw championship in the intercollegiate games held at the Harvard Stadium last spring. This is no small feat when one considers that colleges from all over the country compete in these games. Yale, Princeton, Leland Stanford, University of California, Penn. State or U. of Penn., Cornell, Columbia or any of the other numerous and famous colleges throughout the country could produce a man to defeat Drew. For his great work in winning this championship for Tech, Drew was elected to lead the 1925 Track Team at the Boston Institution. His host of friends and admirers in this city are wishing all kinds of luck as leader of the Tech team and will be rooting for him to successfully defend his championship title next spring.

Ralph Lizio and Charles Schurman are candidates for the Freshman basketball team at the University of New Hampshire. Both these boys were members of the high school team last year. They have both shaped up well in the early work-outs with the Frosh and bid fair to make positions. They will have to play as well as they know how to stay with the first team as Coach Gustafson has some fine material to work with.

If the weather continues to be as cold as it is now and the child called 1925 in the caricatures has no more of a wardrobe than displayed in his pictures he will freeze before he is with us many minutes.

THINKS PONZI SHOULD NOT BE DEPORTED

Boston, Dec. 29.—Rev. Dr. A. Z. Smith will be sworn into office and for the first time in a woman will take office as Secretary of State. The inaugural ceremony will be broadcast by radio.

POOR YEAR AT BROCKTON

Brockton, Mass., Dec. 29.—About $9,000,000 less business was done by Brockton shoe manufacturers this year than during 1923, according to statistics announced unofficially. It was the poorest year since 1900 from a business standpoint.

If you ponder for a moment can you think of the many things that have changed in Portsmouth during the past year, or are you just the same as the great majority and simply say, "Nothing changes here but the movies"? Many things have changed in Portsmouth during the year 1924 and one can find no better way of finding out whether or not he is a wideawake, observant citizen than by enumerating the changes that have taken place during the past year.

CONGRESS BACK AFTER RECESS

Chats with your GAS man

A COMMUNITY is as goor or as bad as its gas service. The two things go hand in hand. If the community is prosperous, the gas company will be prosperous likewise. Or the contrary may be true.

Watch what takes place in 1925. If business expands and conditions are generally prosperous you will be able to read the real story in the records of this company.

When the makers and users of gas service are on friendly terms, both benefit from prosperous times. Where there is lack of co-operation between them, both parties suffer.

—All signs point to a prosperous 1925. We are equal to the tasks ahead, and can meet increased demands, but we must have the co-operation of our customers. To try to do the job alone would be to court disaster.

SERIOUS FIRE AT BURLINGTON

Burlington, Vt., Dec. 29—Fire broke out in the third story of a four-story brick building on Church street, leased by Green Bros., and did damage that may reach $75,000. The fire did great damage to the stocks of Green Bros., Colony Bros.' clothing store and Chilton's paint shop on the street floor and to two dental establishments, optical rooms, a fur shop, Bradstreet's offices and private apartments in the other stories.

KITTERY MAN WAS NOT AT HEARING

Four of 25 Appear at Hearing on Revocation of Auto Licenses

A hearing was held last week at Augusta, Me., before Charles H. Innes of the State Highway Commission on the question of the suspension of automobile drivers licenses in a number of cases heard in the municipal court on charges of driving automobiles while under the influence of liquor and reckless driving. In practically all of the cases probable cause had been found in the municipal courts and the respondents were bound over for the higher courts.

Twenty-five respondents were ordered to appear at the hearing, but only four showed up. The commission's decision in these cases will be made within a few days.

The four who appeared before Commissioner Innes to show why their driving licenses should not be suspended on the charge of operating cars while under the influence of intoxicating liquor were Everett Brown of Albion, Jesse Gray of Auburn, Frank Kaluzyski of Lewiston, and Charles P. Daily of Bangor.

The others who were ordered to appear for hearings were James H. Stone of Harrison, Arthur W. Libby of Portland, Walter W. Hapgood of Harrison, Leon Bartlett of Van Buren, Roy E. Shaw of Bridgton, Percy Barchard of Bangor, Fred A. Lester of South Portland, Willie Demers of Lewiston, Thurlow Brown of Auburn, Leo Davio of Belfast, Jim Perry of Bangor, Lewis Morin of Jackman, Tracy Hall of Frankfort, Onesime Cormier of Millinocket, Edward E. Barker of Auburn, Albert LaFontaine of Lewiston, Donat Beligrade of Lewiston, Ernest Emons of Rockport and Nebraska Thornton of Kittery.

Thomas Hargreaves of Sanford was ordered to appear for hearing in a case involving the charge of reckless driving, and Joseph M. McNeal of Caribou relative to the charge of going away without stopping his truck after causing injury.

MAINE BOXER WANTS BOUTS

Kid Michaud of Fort McKinley, Me., is now stepping lively among the fast leather pushers of this section and his manager, Harold V. Snyder, also of Fort McKinley, is desirous of arranging to settle all quarrels with any of the 115-pound class who are entertaining pugilistic ambitions.

Kid Machaud has a record which is hard to equal, having won 24 of his 26 fights. Sixteen of these were disposed of by the K. O. route in less than four rounds.

Tiger Connell, formerly flyweight champion of the 5th Infantry, was battered into submission by Kid Michaud in the fourth round of a scheduled 10-round bout; also Young Gagnon of Augusta, Me., who is well known to the fans of Portland, was beaten at his own game of swapping punches in the second round of a scheduled six-round go. Others of more or less prominence have been disposed of by Kid Michaud.

Kid Michaud is also anxious for a return bout with Kid Cabana of Sanford, Me., whom he is confident he can dispose of in very short order.

Bouts may be arranged by communicating with Harold V. Snyder at Fort McKinley, Me.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Many Activities Planned and Promising Outlook For New Year

The contest between the Reds and Blues started off with much pep yesterday at the Sunday school hour. The captains, Mrs. O. D. Ham and Leland Brigham, chose alternately until all those present were on one or the other of the teams. The idea of the contest is to get members into the Sunday school and the winners are to be given a treat by the losing side. The Blues are sure they will win while the Reds know they are going to be the winners. A cordial invitation is given to those who have no Sunday school to make their home with this society. Starting with the new year Sunday school will commence at 11.30 instead of 12 o'clock.

Yesterday being the last Sunday of the old year the attendance was greatly increased at all the services. The Christian Endeavor Society ended the year with a rousing meeting and renewed interest. Some of the suggestions to make 1925 the year year for the local society are as follows: Be willing, be a Christian Endeavorer 365 days, be courageous, be patient, co-operation, daily devotional life, perseverance.

The evening service was well attended and a fine message on "Degrees From the University of Hard Knocks" was given. It was received with much earnestness and brought each to the realization that the small things each does may mean a great deal to another person and help them to do greater work than one can.

On Wednesday evening the mid-week prayer meeting will be held in the vestry.

On Friday evening a parish supper will be held in the vestry to which all are invited. It is hoped many may come and enjoy the fellowship of each other.

The New Year is fast approaching. We will all be making good resolutions. Still, even after making these firm resolves to do better we are still human and so our good resolutions are lost sight of in the pursuit of happiness.

All the new skates that Santa Claus brought are getting initiated into the ways of gliding over the ice. Despite the cold of Sunday many lovers of the winter sport braved the rigors of the climate to enjoy a spin and twirl on the sharpened runners.

There are many arguments as to what was the coldest place in Portsmouth on Sunday. Anyone who walked across the Memorial bridge on Sabbath can't be told much about how and when and where it was coldest est on Sunday. Anyone who wants to find the North Pole need only to look somewhere in the vicinity of the Memorial bridge on a cold day.

Hundreds saw the new submarine V-2 slip from the ways into the water at the Navy Yard Saturday. It is interesting to note that the warships of our navy 20 years ago were of the same tonnage as the submarines of today. The V-2 tips the beams at a tonnage of over 2000 tons. The warships of "yesteryear" had a displacement of 2000 tons.

The streets and sidewalks remain treacherous. The weather hasn't been warm enough to melt the thin coating of ice that has done so much damage during the last few days. It is quite remarkable that more people have not been injured. The sand has helped a great deal in making the streets passable but there are places where the sand has blown off or sunk into the ice and crossings in the streets that are still too slippery to be safe.

During this period of business depression Portsmouth has been very lucky. We have had our unemployed during 1924 just as other cities have but proportionately Portsmouth has not had nearly so many unemployed as there have been in other cities of this size. In Dover, for instance, there has been more than three times as many unemployed as there has been in Portsmouth.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to thank all those who so kindly assisted us in any way during our recent bereavement.

Mrs. James Noseworthy and family.

NEW PASTOR AT LOCAL CHURCH

At the People's Baptist church on Sunday Rev. J. K. Custos, formerly of Norfolk, Va., the newly elected pastor, took charge of the work. All of the members and friends greeted him, his wife and three children. All were much impressed with him and his family. Dr. Custos preached two wonderful sermons full of power. In the morning he took for his subject, "Advantages of Association With Christ." In the evening at 7.30 o'clock he preached a stirring sermon from Acts 16:9, which was enjoyed with spiritual enthusiasm.

CONDUCTOR BURGESS DIED SUDDENLY

Forty Years With Railroad.—Last Duty on Portsmouth and Dover Branch

Vernon R. Burgess, one of the best known passenger conductors of the Portland division of the Boston and Maine Railroad, died suddenly at his home in Dover at 11.30 p. m. Sunday night. Mr. Burgess had seen forty years or more of railroad life. For several years he ran between Kennebunk and Portland and the last ten years on the branch line between Dover and this city. He made his usual trips on Saturday. He was a man of very genial disposition who made many friends among the railroad employes and the traveling public and always retained their esteem. He was a most thorough railroad man and has seen few if any accidents in his long period with the Boston and Maine.

Much sorrow was expressed by officials of the company and employes in Portsmouth when informed of his sudden passing.

He is survived by a wife and daughter. His death was due to heart trouble.
